FIRST CALL FOR ABSTRACTS

1st Call for Abstracts! Abstract Submission is now open for the Alaska Chapter of the Wildlife Society Annual Meeting, to be held in Juneau, at the Elizabeth Peratrovich Hall, from 26-28 February 2019. Follow this link to submit your abstract by 21 December: <http://twsalaskameeting.com/>. Our theme this year is Forest-Wildlife Relationships and our keynote speakers will be Dr. Sophie Gilbert and Matt Kirchoff who both have extensive expertise researching forest-wildlife relationships, specifically in SE-Alaska.

As always, submissions of all fields relevant to wildlife are welcome and encouraged. Submit your abstract to either the General Session or one of our two special sessions: Effects of Young-growth Management, Recreation, and Climate Change on Wildlife or the Spark Session, a fast-paced session featuring 5 minute presentations in a unique way of connecting ideas, engaging the audience and eliciting discussion about anything and everything we're passionate about in the wildlife profession.

Two workshops will be offered on February 26, including "A practical introduction to GIS for wildlife biologists" and "An introduction to Capture-Mark-Recapture [CMR] Approaches and Occupancy Modeling", followed by two days of poster and oral presentations. Registration will open December 1 and additional conference details will be posted on the website. Email questions to Kim Jochum, President-Elect: twsalaska@gmail.com.
